DAM GOING OUT. The 59 year old Conewango Creek dam located at Oakview above North Warren is gradually washing away.

About 35 feet of the dam went out with the ice last March and according to Jim Blomquist (in photo) another portion as large is ready to break loose as the waters continue to undermine the concrete wall.

While built in 1900 by E. T. Hazeltine of Beshlin Valve Co. to provide power for the North Warren plant, it has also served in holding enough water back to allow some water recreation for Oakview campers. Already those previous deep portions of the dry season are now shallow enough to wade in.

The well-known Blomquist Island is now an island NOT surrounded by water as a result of the break.

Until the Beshlin Valve Co. sold the dam in 1947, it required annual maintenance because of its value in supplying power. It has not been given any attention since that time.

The dam was not the first in the location, being built in 1900 to replace one located approximately 200 feet to the north on the Conewango, High honor was accorded Dr. Philip Schwartz, chief of Warren State Hospital Pathology department, at the annual convention of the American Medical Association, held last week in Atlantic City.

Out of 387 scientific exhibits shown at the convention, six were chosen for awards as having outstanding merit. Dr. Schwartz's exhibit on Cerebral Apoplexy: Types, Causes and Pathogenesis was one of the six chosen. His award was the Bronze Billings Medal.

Dr. Schwartz's honor is even more unique because his work was the only one from a state hospital laboratory. All other exhibits were from university or other research and teaching hospitals.

Dr. Schwartz, who has headed Warren State's pathology division since 1953, is the author of more than a hundred scientific papers based on his pathological studies. He came to America from University of Istanbul, where he had organized and directed the pathology department of that medical school. He was also formerly Professor of Pathology at Germany's famed Frankfurt University.

Technical drawings for the exhibit were done by Dr. Sami Daygan, M.D., art therapist and medical artist at Warren State Hospital.

FOURTEEN Warren County fire departments responded in less than 60 minutes time Tuesday night to a surprise Civil Defense mutual aid drill sounded at 7 p.m. on the selective call board of the Warren Borough Fire Dept.

The respective units, under the supervision of Chief Leonard Falbriski, Clarendon, and Chief Scott

Stuart, Sugar Grove, were pulled into the rear parking lot of Beaty school in Warren and commenced a pumping operation into Conewango Creek.

MRS. RICHARD M. BLAIR

St. Gertrude's Roman Catholic Church was the setting for the May 30th wedding of Miss Marsha Rader, of Chicago, and Richard Mitchell Blair, formerly of Warren and now also of Chicago.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Clinton C. Green, while Mr. Blair is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold W. Blair, Warren.

The groom is a graduate of Phillips Andover Academy and Duke University and is associated with Pan American World Airways in Chicago. A few years ago he gave lectures in Warren and the surrounding area relating his experience on his year and a half cruise around the world on the Brigantine Yankee with Captain Irving S. Johnson, and showed colored movies he had taken on the cruise.

After a wedding trip to the island of Majorca and Spain the couple will be at home at 542 W. Surf st., Chicago.

Simulated Attack By Russia

By Doris Fleeson

WASHINGTON -- The Joint Committee on Atomic Energy is about to give citizens a preview of a Soviet nuclear attack on the United States. It will be gruesome reading for the public.

The principle purpose of this preview of expected Soviet action in an all-out war is to point up that the doctrine of massive resistance is out of date. The hearings may end up proving a good deal more than that.

A sub-committee headed by Rep. Chet Holifield will begin hearings June 22. The committee will be liberally provided with maps showing likely Soviet bomb drops, the size of the bombs required by the size of the target. The dispatch of Washington will, for example, require one big bomb and another medium size. It will take, according to calculations, three big hydrogen bombs to demolish sprawling Los Angeles.

Nearly every reporter in Washington will be able to give his story about the hearings the local touch. It will take, according to the U. S. experts, about 224 bombs of assorted sizes to bring us to our knees. In contrast, Soviet Premier Khrushchev recently was quoted to the effect that Western Europe could be put out of commission with 18 hydrogen bombs -- all apparently big.

What the committee will be attempting to drive home is the fact that with bombs of present size, and the means of delivering them rapidly being perfected, the odds are all with an attacking power. It thinks that if the United States waits, under all circumstances, to be hit before it retaliates, it will be able to deliver only about 20 per cent as much damage to the aggressor as the aggressor is inflicting on the United States.

Military potentialities have changed considerably since the late Secretary Dulles enunciated the doctrine of massive retaliation. The balance of military power notably shifted in the direction of the Soviet Union. Of late both President Eisenhower and Secretary of Defense McElroy have been delicately suggesting an emendation to the doctrine. That is, if we see an aggressive move afar, we will immediately make one too. Whether we can under all circumstances see a blow coming has not been discussed in public.

The Holifield hearings will go into such things as blast and fire damage to be expected from an attack with nuclear weapons. They will also demonstrate the dangers from radiation as a result of such an attack. They will rely on the wind patterns of a typical day last fall to show the direct radiation and fall-out patterns. A fall day was chosen because it is assumed that the enemy will have taken the precaution to harvest and store his crops in radiation-proof storage before he begins his deadly work.

Two things seem apparent as the hearings are being organized. One is that the attack being simulated by the committee would probably be far more modest than a real one. Another is that the hearings may persuade a good many people that there must be no nuclear wars.

The highest court in the land says we can build the dam and the Indians' land can be covered without violating treaties. The expenditure of money which was impossible as long as the case was pending now is in order, and we await action by the engineers and congress. The first to spend what we already have, and the second to appropriate more so that this project can roll at a faster pace.

As we have proposed on previous occasions, it might be best if the Indians were compensated in kind. Money soon is gone. But land can be used by generations to come and if it is properly located can be of even greater worth than that which now is being lost.

This, of course, may not please the Indians, whose maneuvers to block the dam may have been no more than an effort to increase the value of their land. Perhaps they would prefer the cash, but we suggest that inasmuch as land seems so very important to these people, they be so reimbursed.

The fact is the Indians will benefit more from this dam than any group we know. If the entire area becomes a recreational attraction, as it can if we rightly plan, the Indians will be in a perfect position to capitalize. They will be paid well for what is inundated and will have much earning power in what is left.

The effort to gain attention for the diversion idea obviously is a stall, inspired by those who want to see water projects avoided. We have talked with people who come from the New York area and they believe the Conewango valley idea is senseless and are very much opposed to losing their homes.

In fact, some are a bit angry because such publicity places their homes in the same doubtful category as those of Kinzua residents who cannot sell and do not wish to spend for improvements. And they will stay that way for years if the Kinzua dam does not go through.

But the court has removed the excuses. The ball is in the hands of our Washington friends . . . if there be friends. What we need is money, and the entire Allegheny river valley of towns should be pressuring for it.

THEY SUFFER LONG

The scars are deep from the Warren area high school site dispute that finally ended with a nod for the Swick area. Deeper than those now being gouged out by the bulldozers which are doing a mammoth job of clearing and leveling fifty acres.

But be not alarmed by the injured who continue to throw barbs at the site. Such as the comment that the clearing and filling was costing many extra dollars. But be reminded that the cost is not near as great as the property which would have been bought in town to provide an equal amount of land for parking and related facilities, plus future expansion.

In town we not only would have paid a half million or more for an equal amount of land, but we would have lost the taxes on the razed homes for generations to come. There is no comparison.

As for the earth which was washed downhill in a recent storm, every hill-side in the area would do the same if it were not for vegetation. Once this land is planted it will be even safer than many slopes which have not been leveled and provided with drainage control.

LESSON IN BUSINESS

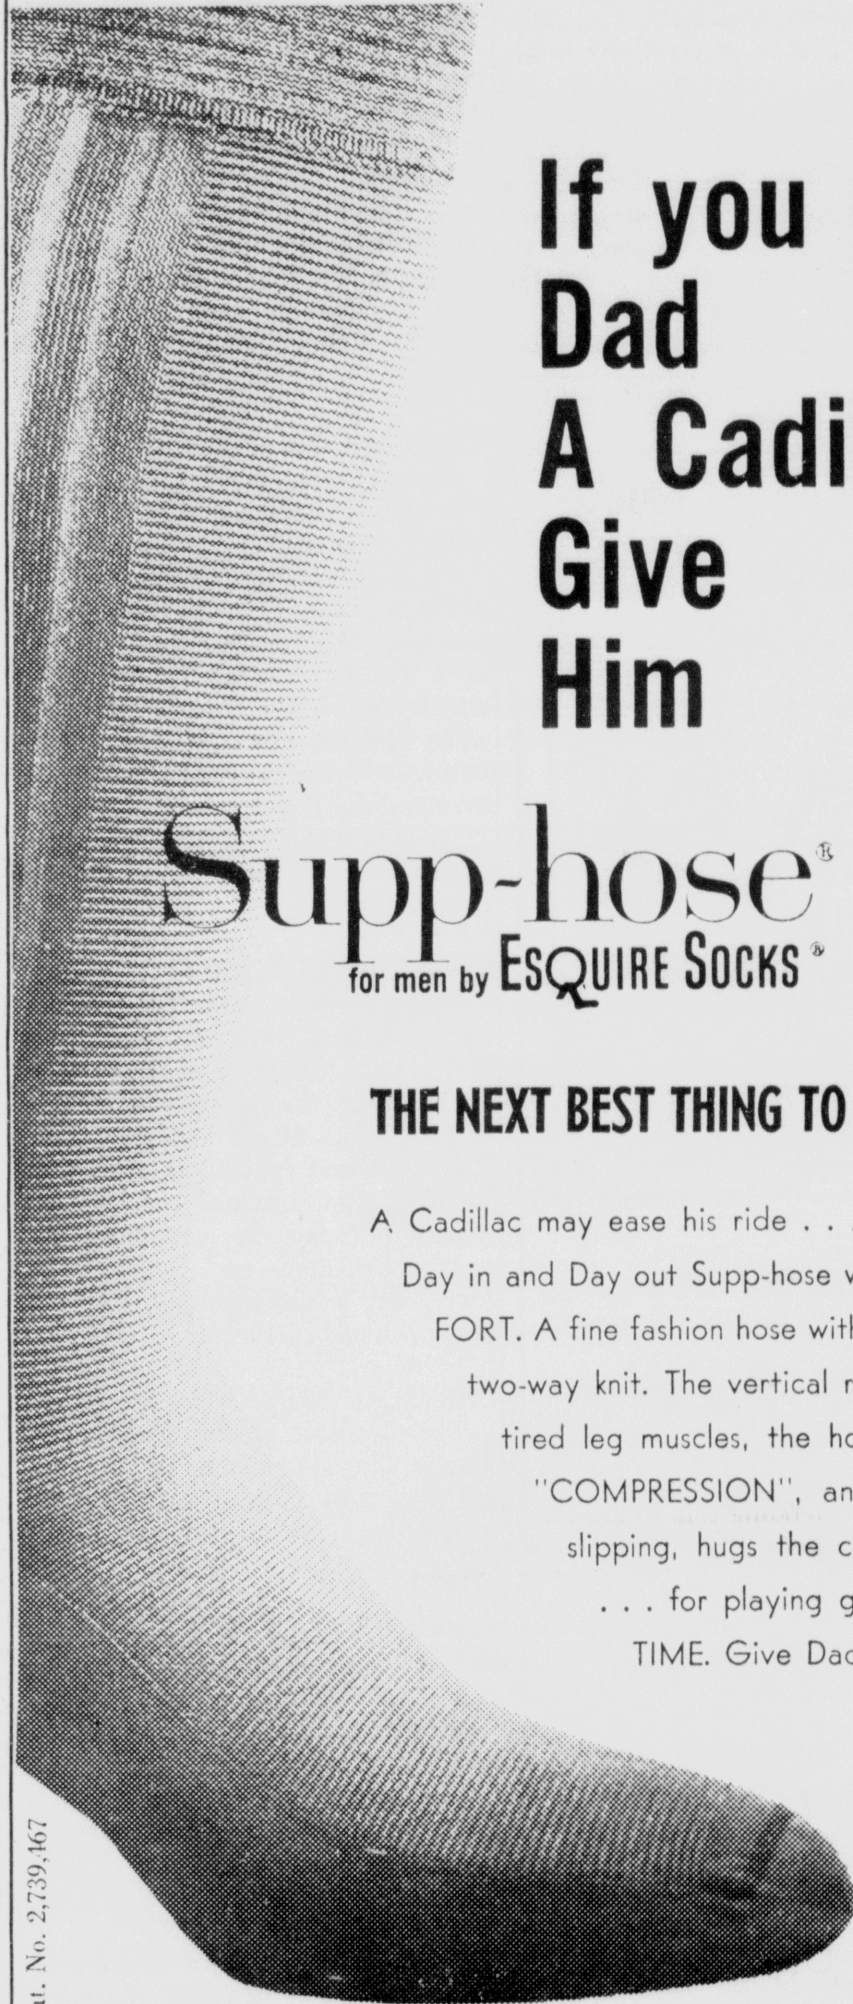

We suggest that our leading businessmen have a close look at the manner in which some of their potential executives handle various civic assignments. If business policies were utilized with so short-sighted a view many of our plants would be bankrupt. Perhaps the testing ground provided by civic activities is too often ignored by those who are looking for promising personnel, or perhaps are interested in the shortcomings of some of their help.

There is a tendency to ignore long-range planning. This is poor economics in any field. The construction of a project, whether it be a school, golf course, swimming pool, tennis court, or any you wish to name, should be dovetailed into the future of our area.

It is so easy to see the obvious of tomorrow if we will give it even a few minutes thought. Expansion, parking, related needs are clearly there, and the advice of those who are informed on the subjects involved is easily obtained.

There also seems to be a blindness in Warren concerning history. So few of these people who become involved in efforts to provide our communities with improvements in-dicade that they have ever fully appreciated the real value of the history books which once plagued them in their scholastic days.

They apparently want to forget them and they do the same when you suggest that others have learned much that could be of value to us. By others we mean communities which have gone through the mill in whatever category we are involved at the moment and have learned the hard way.

Fortunately there are those who have provided the means for studying a cross-section of these experiences, thus making it possible to come up with a collective answer. But too many of our committee members choose to ignore this store of information and work blindly the expensive way.

If such were an employe of ours we would suggest he open his eyes. We would not tell him how to think but we certainly would suggest that he give it a try, and if he chose to weep over yesterday rather than look optimistically and practically to the future we could do without him. As could all of us.

BUYERS' CORNER

ARTIFICIAL BLUEBERRIES

If you like blueberry pancakes the Health, Education, and Welfare Departments are attempting to see that you get what you think you are buying. They are closely examining the content information printed on boxes and cans.

Typical examples are legal actions now being taken in Boston where these departments are saying that blueberries in Pillsbury and Duff pancake mixes are artificially sweetened and contain dehydrated blueberry paste. They want the labels to identify the contents more specifically.

UNETHICAL APPROACH

The pushers of an antibiotic, "Signemycin", are charged with mailing doctors' business cards and prescriptions to prospective buyers in an effort to sell the product. The FTC says these names are fictitious and are not those of actual practicing doctors who had prescribed the drug. It also is called "Signemycin".

AUTHORS MISLED

If you want to write a book the Exposition Press, Inc. does not pay any kind of royalty. So says the FTC in a charge against the corporation, in which it is claimed the defendant falsely advertises that it pays authors 40 per cent royalty on books it publishes.

The complaint says that Exposition Press asks the authors to subsidize the publication of their books and to pay the entire cost. The concern agrees to pay them 40 per cent on all books sold and paid for, but only rarely are sales sufficient for authors to recoup their investments. It ends up so far under 40 per cent that it actually is a loss to the author.

WHEN A JEWEL IS A JEWEL

A jewel must serve a mechanical function as a frictional bearing before it is entitled to be called a "jewel" under watch industry definition, says the Federal Trade Commission. This definition was stated in a recent hearing concerning a watch for which more "jewels" were claimed than the Commission believes were truly so. The case involved the Tornay watch for which 21 jewels were claimed, when actually four of them were merely decorative.

NO SEX IMPROVEMENT

Fraud orders have been issued by the judicial officers of the Post Office Department against the Jenasol Company for the sale of Jenasol R J Formula 60 through the mails. The false and fraudulent pretenses involved claims that the product would increase the sex drive and energy in men and women over forty, and would normalize all underdeveloped children.

CHRYSLER OFFERS THREE

The confusion among dealers who handle Chrysler products concerning who will have the dealership for the new small car which will come out this fall is being clarified, according to trade talk. The Valiant will be sold by Plymouth-DeSoto dealers. Another new car that will compete with Chevy, Ford, Rambler, and Lark will be the Dart and it will be sold by Dodge dealers. Those who have Chrysler will sell the imported Simca, as they already are doing.

MAGAZINE PRICE TREND

The prices of major magazines apparently are drawing together. Last week we reported test sales being made by Life and Readers Digest to learn the effect on their magazines when sold at various prices, all of which are lower than the general news stand price today. Saturday Evening Post also is testing new prices. But they are higher than the current charge.

ANOTHER MENTHOL

Another menthol cigarette can be expected to hit the market hard very soon, and perhaps by the time this sees print. It will be American Tobacco company's entry into this field and will make a strong plug with the health appeal in its promotion. The name will be Richmond.

THAT MAP AGAIN

The Pennsylvania Hotels Association is mailing large gobs of its Pennsylvania map and will sell more at a price. The map is of no help to any communities in Warren county because it fails to list a single hotel, thus sends the tourists hurrying by. It of course is plugging the "under one roof" angle of the hotels it represents.

WHILE PLANNING continues on the proposed swimming pool for Warren, the citizens committee has again been informed by the borough parks and playground committee that the Mulberry site is out as such a move would prevent expanded recreation plans for that area.

"THE GOLDEN CRUCIBLE" Pittsburgh's spectacular historical drama opens at Point State Park in Pittsburgh Saturday evening, June 27.

George Washington's first visit to the Pittsburgh area more than two hundred years ago introduced him to a potent Seneca Indian home-brew that had the Father of our country gasping for breath and adjectives. The incident is one of many illustrated in the production of "The Golden Crucible".

According to Playwright Kermit Hunter's colorful script, Washington came to Pittsburgh after an exploratory trip into Northwestern Pennsylvania. A meeting with Queen Aliquippa, portly leader of the Seneca Indians was arranged and at that point, Washington took a sample belt of the Seneca "medicine".

The exciting action of "The Golden Crucible" will take place in a newly built Amphitheater seating 2500 people and on three stages built around a huge barge moored to shore at the junction of the Ohio, Monongahela and Allegheny Rivers. A cast of seventy-five actors, singers and dancers will weave the delightful tale of the life and times of the Pittsburgh area in the two hour presentation.

Tickets for each of the sixty night time performances of "The Golden Crucible" are available at the Bicentennial Amphitheater in Pittsburgh; at all offices of member banks of the Pittsburgh Clearing House. Phone reservations for any performance are available by calling COURT 1-5760. Inquiries regarding reservations should be sent to "The Golden Crucible", Point State Park, Pittsburgh 22.

YMCA NEWS

There will be a camp rally at Camp Cornplanter this Saturday. The boys will leave in the morning and return after lunch, and are to furnish their own meal. Dessert will be furnished by the "Y". The boys are reminded to wear outdoor clothes for an outdoor program, as there will be a complete tour of the place and several exciting games and contests.

Reservations are to be made by 9:00 o'clock tomorrow evening (Friday) by calling the "Y", RA3-6270. Transportation will be furnished, although the "Y" can always use more cars.

The "Y" is moving its camp site from Lake Erie to Camp Cornplanter and planning a different form of camping this year. This has been done because - first, it is located closer to Warren, making it easier for parents to visit before and during camp session - second, transportation is much cheaper and a boy's fun for a week can be had for a lower fee than the raised fee this year at Lake Erie. Camp Cornplanter is located between Kinzua and Ludlow in the midst of the Allegheny National Forest, and is a perfect site for true "nature" camping.

The camp will open July 19 and close July 26. There is a limited camp capacity but $5.00 sent to the "Y" will hold a reservation for the best camping a boy can have.

A "BANG-UP" AFFAIR is being planned for the annual Fourth of July dinner-dance to be held at the Conewango Valley Country Club Friday, July 3. Something new in music planned -- featuring Will Sunday from the Kahkwa Club, Erie.

Club members please note the dinner-dance, previously scheduled on the Entertainment Schedule for July 4, has been changed to July 3. Reserve the date now. Dr. and Mrs. Robert G. Smith are chairmen of the affair.

THE BOOK AT LAST

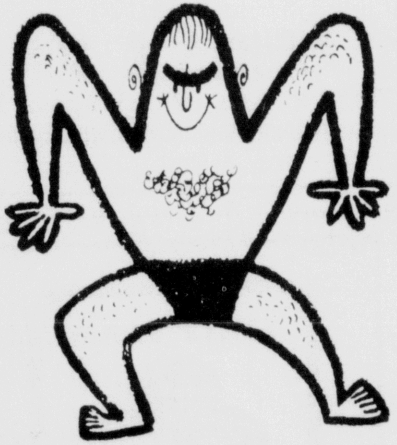

We have been waiting for this one, and have longed to do it. We are speaking of a book which reveals a small community, isolated and on its own as the result of atomic war. We don't know how well the story is done, inadequately, no doubt, as most of these things are.

The name is "Alas, Babylon", published by Lippincott, and written by Pat Frank. A reviewer who apparently hasn't caught up with the times, as is the case with many, thus causing us to wonder how he qualifies as a reviewer, says, "... Mr. Frank manages to give a semblance of reality to his fantasy ... is successful enough in making us believe it could indeed happen here ..."

If a book of this nature in the midst of our cold war doesn't convince us, either the book is poorly done or we as a people have not caught up with current events.

MORE BOOKS

The story mentioned above is one of many reviewed in a piece titled "For Hot Summer Days, a Shower of Fiction", which can be found in the June 13 issue of Saturday Review. Over a dozen books are discussed.

In the same issue an essay by Andre Gide is published for the first time. It is concerned with "The Last Days of Oscar Wilde", and was written in 1901, a year after Wilde died. Admirers of either author will enjoy the piece.

THE GREAT IMPOSTER

The biography of Fred W. Demara, of whom you have read in the papers on numerous occasions, is being published by Random House, and is called "The Great Imposter". It also has been purchased by Universal International films.

Demara is the man who has posed as a doctor, a prison warden, mental hospital attache, a monk, and as a variety of teachers, and has gotten away with it on many occasions, even to the point of performing a delicate operation as a surgeon in the Canadian navy.

One of the colleges he fooled was Gannon, in Erie, where he served as Dr. Robert Linton French, and was dean of the School of Philosophy until his fraud was uncovered.

The last chapter of the book deals much with the question, Why has he done it? Several newspapers in the area may carry it.

The whereabouts of Demara are not known today, but in a telephone conversation with the book's author, Robert Crichton, he said he is on the biggest caper of them all.

Asked why he does these things and what he is doing now he said, "All right. Tell them this, and this is the truth. On Christmas Eve over San Diego, California, before a host of believers, I will be drawn to heaven by a fiery chariot. I will be unmasked. The secret will be finally known. I am a Saint!"

This was met with silence by the telephone interviewer.

"All right," he said, "Tell them this then. I have thought it out and I believe its truth. It's rascality, pure rascality!"

SYMPHONY IN TROUBLE

Pittsburgh is having trouble raising money with which to finance its symphony orchestra. Twenty pair of subscription concerts are scheduled and programmed, the artists are signed, and tours are arranged. But Pittsburgh has come up with only $200,000 of the $350,000 needed. The Pittsburgh Symphony Society is starting a new campaign that will last until fall.

There no doubt are some residents of this area who attend these concerts. If they want to help, the address is 1305 Farmer's Bank Building, Pittsburgh 22.

THIS REALM, THIS NEW YORK
PARIS

Much as I love this beautiful city, I cannot escape the feeling which is more forcible than ever this year, that it is on the outer periphery of the arts, that, in fact, all of Europe is. Back when all Gaul was divided into three parts, all roads led to Rome. Today the lines lead clearly back to New York, a statement that will lead to some outraged howls.

It's a feeling you get whether you are talking to Frenchmen in the arts or to Americans living abroad. The center of their universe is New York which is the headquarters of the world theater, the world's music, much of the world's literature, and increasingly of its art. I don't mean to say necessarily that the writer and the artists are all collected in New York or even that they are Americans because they aren't.

What I mean is that New York is the headquarters. That's where you go for acceptance of your play or your book or in a lesser sense your picture. That's where the decisions are made so that your book or your play or your music is called great (or not so great). If you open big in New York, the play is likely to expand outwards to London, Paris, Madrid. (You find even a lightweight piece of malarkey like "Tunnel of Love" in Madrid which hasn't much theater.) New York's the place -- whether you like it or not -- which blows the whistle on you.

In ancient times, Romans used to get away from it all, too -- the crowds, the pressures of Rome -- and build pleasant villas in Spain (whose ruins are still evident). But, of course, they had to go back to Rome to get promoted. Or to educate the children. "After all, we don't want him to be raised as a Spaniard," I can just hear some Roman matron saying. "Little Octavius won't speak a word of Latin. He thinks in Spanish, that child. But he's a Roman and we want him to appreciate it. So back to Rome it is. I hate the thought of trying to find servants. I understand there isn't a decent cook in all Italy. And the prices!"

So went the refrain then and so it still goes. It's wonderful to live in this lovely city. But what do they think of my pilot film on Madison Avenue? (Or in Beverly Hills?) "The book'll be published in October. Then back to New York," says the expatriate author. "Jack Paar and all those cocktail parties -- and, of course the reviews. It's a bore." Or: "That lousy foreign editor cut my Khrushchev analysis down to three paragraphs and stuck it back with ship news. Doesn't that idiot realize that was the most important interpretive piece I've written all year?"

Whether he realizes it or not, idiot or otherwise, the foreign editor is in New York and he's the boss. And so is the book publisher. So is CBS upon which the little package producer who has the nice apartment in Montparnasse and the French wife is so hopelessly dependent. And so is Radio City Music Hall, the ultimate destination of the movies being shot all over Europe. Even where the box offices are in Europe, the bankers and Twentieth Century Fox are in America.

All these things add up to this strong feeling that Paris and Rome and Madrid are the outer ramparts, the colonies (though that will be ferociously resented), the tread rather than the hub of the wheel. Julius Caesar deep in Gaul wondering what sort of shenanigans were going on back in the Roman Senate, who was trying to cut his throat, went through mental processes not much different from those of the TV producer who heard Hubbell Robinson had been unseated at CBS -- and wondered what this meant to the adventure series he's shooting in Europe.

This has created an odd situation. In Europe today there is a huge pool of what you might call American remittance men of the arts. Because of the vicious inequities of the tax laws, particularly its terrible discriminations against writers, we are driving creative people out of America to Europe where they can get a little tax relief, mostly writing in or acting in or producing or directing movies, but also writing novels or producing TV series or painting pictures.

There have always been expatriate artists and writers, including some very good ones. But the new kind of expatriate writer is a different article from, say, Henry James, who went to England because he felt more at home there. James went to England because he felt it WAS the center of the universe and he belonged there.

Today the John Hustons and Yul Brynners are in Europe mainly to get some relief from a tax system that is so unfairly rigged against artists and in favor of anyone in business. James wrote about life in English country houses because that was his chosen field of battle among the people he chose to write about. Today's writers move to Paris (apart from the tax angle) almost in the spirit of moving to Westport on a somewhat larger scale. You can live better on the money. It's prettier. The air is better.

This has seriously affected the quality of their work. After the last war, Hemingway wrote "The Sun Also Rises" in Paris, a book that was to open a whole new age and act as a beacon for writers the world over. Fitzgerald wrote almost all of "The Great Gatsby" in Paris. Edith Wharton wrote the "Age of Innocence" there and Stephen Vincent Benet "John Brown's Body."

Have any novels of comparable stature been done after this war? I doubt it. One reason, I'm convinced, is that the writers, far from being in the heart of things, feel actually cut off from the center of things, removed from the roots of their existence, living as it were in a sort of cultural suburb, and this has taken some of the freshness and vigor out of their work.

JOHNS STRING BROKEN

A smash-up put Brockway's Squirt Johns out of competition in the feature event at Stateline Speedway Saturday night and left the way for Hyle Russell, hearty contender from Kane, to streak first to the checkered flag. Johns was shooting for his fifth victory in the fifth race of the season at the track.

Bob Schnars, Busti, was second; Emory Mahan, Warren, third; Jim Patrick, Wellsville, fourth. Bud Gardner, also of Warren, won the first heat.

The three leaders in the point standings are Russell, 264; Johnson, 262; and Dean Layfield, Wellsville, 228. Mahan is seventh with 176.

FIRST THIS SEASON

The 50-lap feature race at Bradford Speedway Sunday night was captured by Warren's Emory Mahan, with Squirt Johns in the runner-up slot. It was the local drivers first victory of the season.

INTER-CITY LOOP

Ken Thompson pitched four-hit ball as the Warren Rockets shutout the Jamestown Merchants 3-0 Saturday on the local diamond. It was the second time this season the home lads downed the defending circuit champions.

Barry Drexler's homer accounted for one run and John Castagnino's three-bagger drove in the other two.

The standings to date are Art Metal 6-2, Merchants 5-3, Warren 2-1, and Dunkirk 1-5.

KINZUA TAKES OVER

Kinzua defeated Busti 12-6 Sunday to break a three-way tie and move into the top slot in the Chautauqua Baseball Association with a 5-1 record.

In other action Kennedy edged Onoville 6-5 and Sugar Grove defeated Jamestown 4-1.

Busti and Onoville are tied for second place with 4-2 accounts.

CITY SOFTBALL

Bob Harrison scattered five hits over the seven innings Tuesday night as Soda Mineral chalked up a 7-5 win over Solar Electric on the West Side diamond. The winning hurler also clouted a triple as did Bill Brown. Schmader did the same for the losers.

Tonight the Soda boys face Sheffield on War Memorial Field.

Over the week the 400 Block registered its first victory, 5-3, over Sheffield on Sturdevant's three-hitter. Steffan did as well on the mound for Sheffield.

Soda Mineral bumped off the 400 Block 5-4 with the bats of Foley and Haight hitting safely three times.

Warnie Check smacked a double in the top of the eighth scoring Jack White and the victory.

TOSSES SHUT-OUT

Ken Sorenson pitched no-hit ball and tripled to score the lone run in Betts Machine's 1-0 shut-out over the Bradford Shamrocks on the West Side field Sunday. The winning tally came in the bottom of the seventh frame.

Next Saturday the team will journey to Jamestown for a contest with the Moose team there.

TROPHY WINNERS

At the Youngsville Archers' Club Shoot last Sunday trophies in the archer class went to Stephen Campbell, Youngsville, first place, and Richard Iseman, Warren, second.

Bowman -- George Crippen, Youngsville, first, and W. C. Kite-linger, Warren, second, for trophies; Bill Meyers, Youngsville, third, medal.

High Women -- Pat Kite-linger, Warren, first, and Mary Miley, Youngsville, second, trophies.

Junior Archers -- Deb Kite-linger, Warren, first, medal; William and Caroline Urbanik, Youngsville, second and third, ribbons.

Joe Gotto, of Warren, took the first place visitor's trophy. Two Corry men, Ralph Bailey and Richard Kinney, received medals for finishing second and third respectively in the same classification.

The club is now planning a large trophy shoot, but plans have not been completed as yet.

MOTORBOAT CLUB FORMED

A motorboat club for all boaters of Warren County and the surrounding territories has been organized, officers elected, by-laws adopted and committees formed. It will be known as the Allegheny Buoys and will eventually be affiliated with the Outboard Boating Clubs of America.

The officers of the organization are James Keller, president; Robert McDannel, vice president; and Robert Oehlenslager, secretary-treasurer. Committee chairmen selected: Gilbert McCullough, program; Bill Hansen, education program; Gifford Clark, community service; Waldo Hamblin, boating facilities; Wayne Miller, legislative; Joseph Duffield, membership; Charles VerMilyea, publicity.

Boaters who have not joined the club can do so for an annual fee of $3, with an additional $2 initiation fee for new members.

Next meeting will be held at 7:30, July 27, at the YMCA. Regular sessions will be held on the last Monday in each month.

Two shot rallies in the final two innings brought Anderson's GLF a 12-10 win over Brown and Morley. Williams was credited with the victory.

In a Bantam contest Tom Burleigh smacked a round-tripper and Tom Sobeck hurled a three-hitter to aid Clark and Chappel to a 5-1 triumph over Youngsville Cabinet Shop.

LEGHENY GOES BEGGING

According to the Pennsylvania Game Commission the upper Allegheny river is not being fished and excellent fishing in this area is being begged. It says that bass and trout fishing of a calibre that compares with Canada is to be found here. Access is the problem. It sure is! You enter the water in most places where the road you are confined to is a dead end. A boat won't get you far in the summer time because riffles stop you inside of a mile. Private property will keep you away from many portions unless you go through the bank. This bass season started Monday and will last until next March 14. Available are pickeral, wall-muskies, and northern pike. Season on trout will end September 7. Still to be produced are watersnake maps for this area. Eight such maps have been distributed for twenty-three counties. They show state lands, highways, bridges, county lines, national forests, all the streams, lakes, swamps, and other appropriate information.

T. J. SCALISE

Painting And Paper Hanging

Call RA 3-5185

There will be forty-six of them before the year is out. And if access is so important up here why weren't we one of the first to be done? Probably waiting for more access?

ENTER, THE DAM

The construction of the Kinzua dam will have a major effect on this situation. New highways will result, and the national forest officials will be establishing access for the entire length of one side of the resulting lake.

The water downstream from the dam also will stay at more usable levels throughout the summer months, thus making the use of boats more practical. If you can find access to the river with a boat, given a healthy flow the boat will take you to spots that otherwise are inaccessible.

DEMAND EXCEEDS SUPPLY

In a column several weeks or months ago we mentioned the cabins which may be obtained inexpensively for camping purposes on state forests. If you haven't done anything about obtaining one of these for your vacation it is too late. Applications were received starting April 1, and they totaled 1,728, of which 1,089 were successful.

Fifty-nine per cent of the requests were filled. Of those refused, 89 were mailed too early, and 101 were improperly filed.

This percentage did not obtain in all sections, however. Some are far more popular than others. The Sullivan county World's End state park has 19 cabins, and 273 requests for them were received.

At Promised Land state park in the Poconos there are 12 cabins and only 39 per cent of the applicants were successful. Fourteen cabins in Cowan's Gap state park were sought by 275 people.

We should not say that there are no cabins left, because this applies only to the most popular ones. A week's occupancy of some cabins still is possible if you hurry but they may not be in your chosen location. The cost is $14 to $28 a week during the period from June 1 to September 30. The same price is asked in the off-seasons but you can have a cabin for two weeks.

ALL OF WHICH PROVES

This rush for cabins demonstrates the natural attractiveness of our own area if it is developed. And how it is developed will determine the class of tourists which will be attracted. Build that dam, create a lake, improve the downstream flow and build quality cabins and resorts. The trade will rush in . . . and will leave dollars. We said "leave" dollars.

HOT-PANTED BUNNY

A fireman fighting a field fire in Beaver county was confronted with a rabbit which ran directly at him with its tail ablaze. The fireman doused the inflamed tail with a wet bag and the relieved rabbit took off with his cooled singe.

GAME LAWS PROPOSED

There are a few new laws in the Harrisburg hopper which we think sound a bit ridiculous and perhaps you should be telling your senator about it. One would make it illegal to spot deer or game of any kind with a light during the morning hours after 12:30 a.m. This would be with or without a gun.

This happens to be one of our major attractions and harms nothing. It certainly does not bother animals near as much in these days of roaring highways as does the shooting of them in the fall.

Then there is one which takes the woodchuck off the game animal list and makes him worth a bounty of one dollar. Or maybe fifty cents.

And another would make all hawks open game at all times and in all places. Most game conservationists are working in the opposite direction and the sanctuary in the eastern part of the state where huge flocks of them fly over the mountain range now is a toehold for further protection.

Nature provides the balance. And the concentration of hawks where they prove a real nuisance to a farmer can be handled legally.

COOPERATION

Glancing back over some old game commission releases we note several area names in stories that prove all law enforcement groups cooperate in enforcing game and fish laws. Sgt. Steve Banks, of Tionesta, helped nail a few fish thieves, at a cost of $848 each. Game Protector Dave Titus of Warren arrested an Erie man with 28 short trout and 32 over the limit. The fine . . . $600.

Playground Round-Up

Warren's colorful playgrounds opened Tuesday morning... despite the fact the weatherman did not offer too much cooperation.

Playground director Fred Bell tells us that the Beech st. area will have a crafts program at 9 o'clock every morning and will be open for supervised play at 10.

All areas remain open, under supervision, until 8:30 each evening, Monday through Friday. Crescent Park area is open Saturdays from 10 to 5, the others not supervised on the week ends.

One day each week the youngsters of the community will have an opportunity to take lessons in baton twirling and marching, and everyday at each area there will be crafts. Scheduled posted at the playgrounds will tell youngsters the times for these special projects.

There is archery instruction at Crescent on Mondays from 1:30 until 3:30 on a range set up for those interested.

Special events start this afternoon with a treasure hunt at all areas. There will be a spelling bee tomorrow (Friday). It should be noted that only children registered at the various playgrounds are permitted to participate in any special event.

The playground director has released the schedule of special events for the season which follows. We suggest you clip it out and post it on mom's reminder board in the kitchen so you can enjoy these summer activities.
